Group Features Impromptu Talks

Impromptu speaking was the keynote of the June 27 meeting of the South Bay Toastmaster's Club 280, held at the Redondo Beach Elk's Club.

All club members and guests were called on in the early part of the meeting to give short, off the cuff talks on assigned subjects in a practice to "think on their feet," as meeting chairman John Chadwick termed it.

Following an intermission, five of the regular club members, James McDonald of Manhattan Beach; Doctor Wilmet Labit, Don Payne and Richard Squire, of Torrance; and Thomas Eadie of Hollywood Riviera gave full-length, unrehearsed speeches.

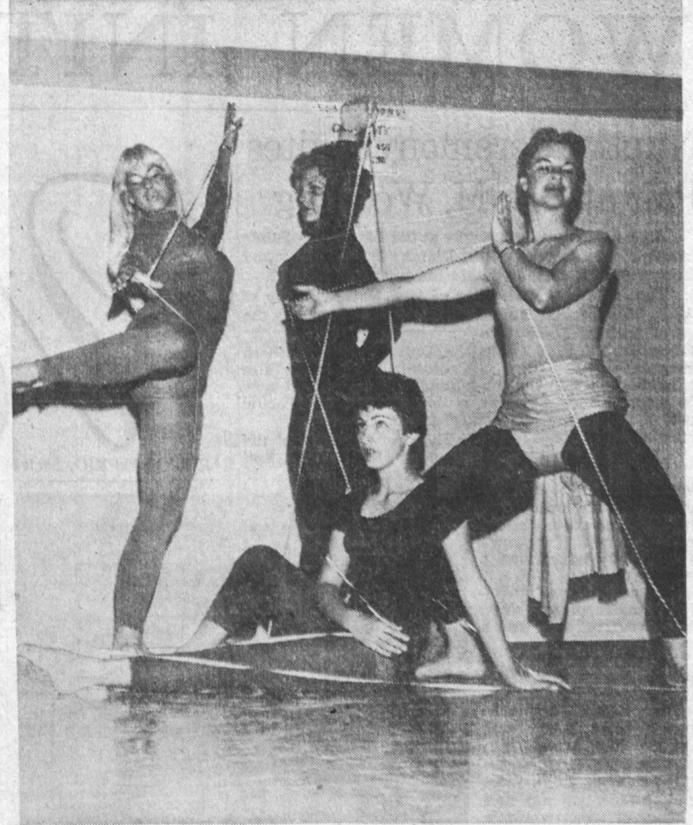

Eadie's talk on his recent trip to his former home, Scotland, was the highlight of the evening.

Club President James McDonald summarized the meeting by emphasizing what he felt was the "demonstration of the value of toastmastering to business and professional men." He applied the lessons of toastmastering to all business and social activities.

Further information regarding Toastmaster's may be had by calling Dr. W. J. Labit at FR 5-3611.
